CLINTON 44 – TRUMP 43, TOO CLOSE TO CALL,
QUINNIPIAC UNIVERSITY NATIONAL POLL FINDS;
DEMOCRAT HAS 9-POINT LEAD ON TONIGHT’S DEBATE

The presidential race between Democrat Hillary Clinton and Republican Donald Trump is a virtual dead heat, as she takes 44 percent of American likely voters to his 43 percent, with 8 percent for Libertarian Party candidate Gary Johnson and 2 percent for Green Party candidate Jill Stein, according to a Quinnipiac University national poll released today.

This compares to a 41 – 39 percent Clinton lead among likely voters, with Johnson at 13 percent and Stein at 4 percent, in a September 14 survey by the independent Quinnipiac (KWIN-uh-pe-ack) University.

In a head-to-head matchup, Clinton gets 47 percent to Trump’s 46 percent.

American likely voters say 41 – 32 percent that Clinton will win tonight’s presidential debate and 84 percent of voters say they plan to watch the highly anticipated showdown.

In fact, 55 percent of likely voters nationwide say they are “more motivated than usual” to vote, while 11 percent say they are less motivated and 33 percent say their motivation is “about the same as usual.”

There is a small gender gap and a wide racial divide in the four-way likely voter matchup as Clinton leads 47 – 42 percent among women, while men go to Trump by a narrow 44 – 40 percent. Trump leads 50 – 36 percent among white voters, while non-white voters back Clinton 66 – 24 percent.

“The race for President is a virtual tie and millions of likely voters consider the first debate must-see TV. And for those inclined to place a wager on the likely winner, Hillary Clinton is the best bet,” said Tim Malloy, assistant director of the Quinnipiac University Poll.

“In this Super Bowl of American politics, the ratings will be huge and the contenders start dead even.”

Quinnipiac University Poll/September 26, 2016 – page 2

In the four-way presidential matchup, Trump leads 86 – 5 percent among Republicans and 42 – 35 percent among independent voters. Democrats back Clinton 90 – 6 percent.

Candidates' Health

American likely voters say 73 – 18 percent that Trump is healthy enough to be president. Clinton is healthy enough to be president, voters say 58 – 31 percent.

For 33 percent of voters, their opinion of Trump was affected in a negative way by his participation in the so-called “birther movement” which said President Barack Obama was born outside the U.S., while 4 percent say their opinion was positive and 60 percent say it did not affect their opinion.

Trump’s announcement that he now believes President Obama was born in the U.S. did not affect their opinion of him, 78 percent of likely voters say.

A total of 50 percent of voters are “very concerned” or “somewhat concerned” that they or a family member will be a victim of a terrorist attack, while 50 percent are “not so concerned” or “not concerned at all.”

Government anti-terror policies have not gone far enough to adequately protect the country, 51 percent of voters say, while 27 percent say they have gone too far restricting civil liberties.

From September 22 – 25, Quinnipiac University surveyed 1,115 likely voters nationwide with a margin of error of +/- 2.9 percentage points. Live interviewers call landlines and cell phones.

The Quinnipiac University Poll, directed by Douglas Schwartz, Ph.D., conducts public opinion surveys in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Florida, Ohio, Virginia, Iowa, Colorado, North Carolina, Georgia and the nation as a public service and for research.
